The listings on the following pages contain historic furnishings judged to be older than 1950. Many of these furnishings have been defaced, have missing parts, or have been painted colors other than the original. As a result, it will require great expense to repair all of them. Instead, it may be useful to repair only those in better condition and use them for museum pieces while keeping others for parts.

Animal Mounts

Lake McDonald Lodge lobby and dining room

Since these mounts were covered with cloths, they could not be photographed. As a result, we relied upon Bruce Fladmark's 1989 Furnishing Guide to Lake McDonald Lodge for mount information. There are approximately seventeen deer and antelope heads, seven bird mounts (includes eagles and owls), one full mountain goat and two heads, two mountain sheep heads, one moose head, and a bear skin.
